

Are we falling behind?

Want to download movies and music to your wireless device?

Watch live TV on it?

Pay for the subway with it?

Get concert and movies tickets on it?

Well... for full access to these services, you could move to Europe. Or the U.S... or Asia.

In our view, that's because a lack of competition in our protected market results in fewer new technologies being offered to consumers.

So, consumers in many other countries have advanced mobile phone services virtually unknown in Canada.

Wireless competition would give consumers a break

Isn't it time the government made that happen?
