

Ô CANADA!

We're number... 29?

Canadians used to be number 1 in wireless use.

Now we're 29th out of 30 OECD nations.

Why?

In our view, that's because a lack of competition in our protected market allows the Big Three mobile phone companies to keep prices above other nations' averages.

So now they're number 1 in the world. In profits.

Wireless competition would give consumers a break.

Isn't it time the government made that happen?

QUEBECOR

A blue curved line graphic that starts under the 'Q' and sweeps upwards and to the right, ending under the 'R'.